2015 The Year of Infinite Possibility

Embrace Your Heart, Free Your Spirit & Shine...

The vibration of 2015 in numerology = 8. The 8 symbolises the ancient symbol of infinity symbolizing no beginning and no end. It's Infinite and it's connected. Just like you! In spiritual terms this is the symbol of alchemy, true alchemy is not about turning riches into gold but turning the ego self into the enlightened self.

Over the past few years, both individually and as a mass consciousness, we have started to become more aware of our infinite selves and the spiritual realm. We are now able to witness the phenomena of orbs in videos, not just still photography, and more people are having their own experiences witnessing the presence of spirit. The veil is lifting between our world and the spirit world. We are all naturally playing our own part in all of this and with this comes the realisation to many that this life is not all there is, and there is a bigger picture for all of us. It also brings awareness to the spiritual laws that govern us and that are available to all of us. The infinity symbol represents our connection to each other and these other worlds. Those who continue to see themselves as separate through the ego self will feel more and more lost and alone as the new way starts to awaken in more and more people. The new way is finding the balance between the ego and the infinite or enlightened self, which is represented by the 2 parts of the 8 joined together...separate but remaining connected and forming the whole. This is the duality of ourselves here on the earth plane.

You came here with a divine purpose and an individual purpose. Your divine purpose is to evolve and bring as much love as you can to the earth plane. Through you awakening your spirit to self-love and self-acceptance, you connect to your divine self. By doing this you then naturally inspire those around you to do the same. Therefore helping bring more enlightenment and love to the earth plane. Your individual purpose is how you will do this, it is your gifts you have chosen to use in this life time. Unfortunately the ego part of self, with its self-created illusions, will often keep this away from you, via the internal dialogue that focuses on what and why you can't do things, rather than on why you can. 2015 is going to ask you to connect to your spirit and embrace your pure potential and possibility. It is also asking you to understand, on a much deeper level, your connection to others. You are not separate from anyone, and everyone that shows up in your life, you are attracting and they are teaching you to learn to love yourself. Yes even the annoying ones. Depending on the lessons you have chosen for this life time, this can be via many different ways. Nothing in this bigger picture is random and when you start to learn this you will see just how connected we all really are. You are going to be asked in 2015 to make the changes that are needed so that your purpose starts to become more visible and possible to you.

In spiritual profiling for 2015, we see that relationships with others will still be a major way we continue to develop and learn through the vibration of the 2. Through the 5 we will learn what it is we need to change and start to change it. The 1 is all about your personal power, your authenticity and your individuality and, when mixed with the vibration of the 8, it's asking you to identify your connection and your possibility both in relationships and career. This means you can no longer let others define you or use the opinions and judgements of others to make you either feel good about yourself or self-defeated. This is where you should be starting to feel more empowered in self, just enough to start to connect to your gifts with belief. Many of you will start to look within and define some changes, especially on the work front. Many will start to understand that there is something they can do and it doesn't need to fit in with the old ways of thinking. They will start to find their belief in themselves to start heading towards it, in their own way and the way that is guided from within. It may still take the full 12 months before one's confidence connects enough to put the changes into action, but a lot of people will awaken in 2015 to their own desired direction.

The 8 vibration is also all about security and achievement which is why your work direction will probably come into focus somewhere in 2015, especially for those who carry an 8 in their spiritual profile. That can be in the personality (birthday), destiny number (life path) or the personal year number. To discover your numbers you might want to order the 12 page personal report at the discounted price of $15.00 offered at the end of this report. This focus can include changing work, new direction, stepping up into a role with more responsibility, losing a job, retiring or beginning study for a new career.

The new way for business is all about connection and I am not talking about social networking, even though that will help. I am talking about true honest personal connection. Building relationships the old fashion way, by talking and connecting to others on a more heart felt authentic level is what will connect you to the people you need and who need you.

The 8 amplifies....whatever you give out you will get back, and in 2015 even faster. There is an easy way and hard way to build achievement and business. If you build it through the ego then you will be doing it the hard way. The ego as a mass consciousness has changed, the old way which was all about power, money and control doesn't have the same power it had in the past. Those who made big money with dishonesty and no integrity are finding it harder and harder to get the results they used to as the mass awakens and becomes more intuitive and wary. Build your achievement through a heart/mind authentic connection and things will flow more naturally and easily to you. We are all going to be supported in achieving a more divine connection to ourselves and our spirit in this energy, if we choose to follow the pathway we are shown. We all have free will, so this is not a given, it will be a choice.

A good indication that things need to change is that you are constantly worried, frustrated and feeling like you're going around in circles. If you keep your thoughts and your energy in this vibration in 2015 then you will get more of the same and it will show up faster than ever before.

The universe can only show us that change is needed through frustration. How would you know to change if you aren't aware of it? Frustration ensures you don't miss the sign posts the universe is leaving you. The 5 of this year is going to help you see this more clearly, but a word of warning, staying here when change presents itself may have the universe forcing change upon you. You will have to identify if you are procrastinating or if you really just don't have enough information to make the right choice yet. The only place to find the answers to your own life is to go within and find your heart.

The mind is a loose cannon when it's running its old programs through the ego. It will have you dragging up old thoughts, negative justifications and limiting beliefs. A belief comes through the mind and our beliefs are not necessarily truth and fact, they are how we view things and our world. A knowing however is very different, it's a gut instinct, a feeling that comes from within, and if you connect to this rather than your mind then you will have a lot less confusion. Start sourcing your soul stuff from within is the mantra of 2015. Stop trying to get acceptance and validation from outside sources and start trusting your inner guidance. It knows what you need to learn and what you need to know in order to grow and evolve. Therefore your instinct will attract what you need or what you need will jump out at you and feel right for you.

Every year we lift our vibration in the mass consciousness. So every year we are given more opportunity to understand our bigger picture and become more intuitive. It's wonderful to see that this also helps the spirit world with their communication with us, through the ways they show us they are still around. As I mentioned above, we are now even capturing spirit on video. If you want to see this amazing phenomena, visit my blog at juliekayinternational.com and view the video called Spirit orbs on video. There is also a video to teach you how to do this yourself.

A quick look back to gain a better understanding in moving forward...

The feminine energy is that of intuition, nurturing, love and acceptance, which has been dominated by the masculine energy of power, greed and control since the Age of Pisces, which began in approximately 26 AD. The masculine energy has been about power and control and has brought some very dark times to the earth plane. Shifting into the Age of Aquarius on the 11/11/2011, and then actioned by 21/12/2012, started the ball rolling for this feminine energy to shine. 2013 was about cementing this feminine energy of spiritual harmony and Grace to the earth plane. Now, don't think I am man bashing here, absolutely not. I am talking about the masculine and feminine energies that are both present in all of us. The masculine energy is more aligned to thoughts, primal power, control and survival, and driven by the intellectual mind and the ego, while the feminine is more aligned to the intuitive, spiritual, nurturing and community, and driven by feeling through the intuitive and spiritual self. You can be a female that is more aligned with the masculine energies or you can be a male more aligned with the feminine. It will depend on you as a person as to which energy you will align with more.

In the Age of Aquarius, the balance of dark and light was tipped towards the light. This is the spiritual revolution. It's started and there will be no stopping it.

In 2013 we were being asked to stop struggling against life and to be more in flow with the universal laws. I also mentioned that those who were not prepared to evolve with this lift in consciousness would struggle even more in its energy, and therefore we would also see a rise in mental health disorders and addictions. I suggested that there would also be a rise in anger, violence and crime. What we have seen between 2011-2014 is a definite rise in these polar opposites. On one hand, we see a massive change in the acceptance of the intuition and more spiritual based therapies and beliefs, and on the other, more violence with robberies, break-ins and mental health and addiction issues. We are now starting to see more community support as the mass discovers they have a voice and are starting to speak up for peace. We are no longer sitting in silence or following the flock like scared little lambs. It's slow, but change is happening.

This feminine energy is no longer being seen as weak and the world is about to discover, on a much deeper level, that love is the most powerful energy there is. On an individual level, we awaken to the fact that love does not come from the outside of self, it is already within and always available just by connecting to our infinite self. In 2015 the infinite connection of the 8 reminds us that we are all connected and what is showing up in our lives via relationships is a reflection of what we are attracting and putting out there. If love hasn't been easy then it's time to look at why your soul lessons and limiting beliefs keep delivering more of what you don't want instead of what you do want.

In the universe everything is balanced. Nature works on balance and if it gets out of balance it dies. There is always going to be good and bad and as the light rises so does the dark. The dark will attract the dark and the light will attract the light. What side are you going to be on? If you join the dark in its thoughts and judgements that support hate and non-acceptance, then that's the side you're on. Stand for love and peace in all areas of your life instead and join the new revolution.

Finances for 2014

In 2015 money will be a focus for many. This vibration is set to once again go through another cycle where investments in the stock markets will be volatile. This is not a year of quick fixes and get rich quick schemes, as we come to realise that money is just an energy flow and there are times it flows and times it doesn't. If we were better prepared for when it didn't, we wouldn't stress so much and therefore attract more problems. This is a great year to start saving and to get your finances sorted. If you put money before the heart this year you may learn the hard way that it can be a lonely place being disconnected from others.

If you start to understand that money is just a form of energy exchange, and in the enlightened energy, it is attracted through the positive joy of your actions and the love that comes from the giving of service to others, then you will see more abundance. A word of warning here - that this still needs to be in balance. In other words if you give in to the detriment to self, or to save others from their own responsibilities or to control and manipulate, then this kind of giving is out of balance and you will receive little back. The law of attraction is amplified in this energy and, if you focus on lack, you will get more of it faster than ever before. If your focus is joyful and on the service and giving, then you will receive more and faster than ever before. Whatever you are giving, you are going to receive quicker than ever before. If you are giving for gain and nothing else, then this is negative and you're giving little will attract little back. If you sell or serve in the energy of compassion and love in the work that you do, you will be rewarded.

In 2015 it is a great year to revise your career and work direction. You are supported with both the 5 and the 8 for changes in work and career. If you're not happy doing what you do then go within and try and see what direction would suit you better. Don't waste this energy with procrastination, that is the key, however you don't need to rush either. You will be supported though out 2015 in helping you identify what it is you really want to do. Make sure you keep your energy charged with the graciousness and gratitude for what you have at the moment. Yes it's great you want change, but that change will come easier and faster if your energy is positive and accepting of where you are right now.

On the Global front, finances will be all over the place and I believe economic frustrations for all countries. In countries where crime and corruption are already rife this will become worse and we will hear a lot of devastating stories coming out of 2015. What do we do about this? As individuals there is nothing you can do, except to work on bringing more love and enlightenment to yourself. This raises your vibration and ensures you are not attracting this energy around you. It also helps you inspire others to do the same and so we start to bring love and peace to the world through individuals connecting to love. If you fight against these energies you empower them. Leave that to the governments and the powers to be and stand up for peace instead, and trust in the spiritual revolution that is taking place. Look back in time and you will see none of the great revolutions have been won by those in power at the time. They were won with the uprising of ordinary individuals who stood in their power. Look at what Martin Luther King achieved by just by standing in his truth. We must stand in our truth and not be pulled into the mass hysteria and fears. If you can give aid or help in some way, that's love, and if you can't, turn away and don't allow this to pull you down. Now is a good time to stop allowing the news of the world to rob you of the hope in your own life. Your life doesn't have to be ruled by fearing for your future, or what you fear is all you will see evidence of, especially in 2015. Choose to look at the world through eyes of hope and you will start to see it all around you, in little but powerful ways. You will start to see that people are connecting to their hearts and you will see the good that the seemingly insignificant are doing. Just look around in your community and start to see the wonderful things that everyday people are doing for others. These people are the real leaders and the real heroes of the spiritual revolution.

While we are still in 2014, we still have time to connect to the energy of what this vibration is trying to teach us. To remind you of what 2014 The Year of Personal Alignment was all about, I have included the areas we were meant to focus on in 2014 from last year's report.

2014 is telling you to connect to your inner world and start trusting self.

2014 is telling you that you are infinite and the answers to you and your life are within.

2014 is amplifying the "Love of self" and the "love for others" as we are starting to integrate the understanding that love shows up when there is love for self and others.

2014 amplifies and supports you to be your authentic self and to not hide your individuality and differences any longer.

2014 supports change for your belief systems and to connect more to self-belief and self-confidence.

2014 supports you to be you, and love you, warts and all.

So use the rest of the year's energy to your advantage and try and identify where you need to change within yourself, and then watch the changes this attracts to you in 2015.

So what is 2015 telling us?

2015 is telling us that we must understand our own connection and possibility. So here is a list of what this year is telling you and what you can align with in 2015.

2015 is this bringing more awareness to the realisation that we are all connected.

2015 is supporting you to make changes in your work and career. If you're not happy, it's time to go deeper and discover why.

2015 is telling you to learn more about the energy of money. It is only an energy and should not be the source of your misery or happiness. Your happiness comes from within and is more precious than anything you will buy or own. You can't take your stuff with you when you pop your clogs and die. Simplify and live within your means or this year will be harder than ever.

2015 is telling you that the more connected to your spirit and heart you are, the easier things will flow.

2015 is giving you the opportunity to use the energy of alchemy and to start to evolve out of the clutches of the ego into your spirit, and then your life will change to Gold.

2015 is telling you to turn away from the negative and start to see others as equals. When you see someone as better than you, you place them on a pedestal and they will disappoint you at some time. When you see someone as worse than you, you put yourself on a pedestal and pride always comes before a fall. What you see in others is what you fail to see in yourself....Good and bad.

2015 encourages you to join the spiritual revolution by playing your own part in bringing love into your own life and into everything that you do. When you do, you become a leader in the spiritual revolution and naturally inspire others to do the same.

Here is a fabulous exercise to do to get you ready for 2015 - The Year of Infinite Connection and Possibility.

These are the times you want to celebrate and it's this positive energy that you want to take with you into 2015. Finalise your 2014 on a joyous note.
